CALLS POWER MERGERS HOPE OF GEORGIA

WILLIAMS URGES UNSELFISH ACTION TO GUARANTEE ADEQUATE POWER SMALL TOWNS.

Designating the present movement toward further consolidation of the power companies as the "outstanding hope" of Georgia, Editor James C. Williams of the Greensboro Herald, in a special statement urged "unselfish assistance" and united support on the part of thoughtful Georgians "in all walks of life" toward the completion of the proposed mergers.

"I have watched with a great deal of interest the results of the activities of the power companies for several years," Mr. Williams declared, "and have come to the conclusion that the completion of the plans for consolidation into one working organization is the outstanding hope of Georgia. Every thoughtful Georgian realizes the value of cheap and continuous power as a factor in bringing new industries into our state. As a matter of fact one can trace the increase in industrial development in Georgia directly to the increase in power availability.

These are facts that every one knows, but there is a still more important argument in behalf of power consolidation it seems to me when one considers the agricultural situation. The basis for successful agricultural operation is the same basis as in successful industrial operation, namely, increased efficiency in production and increased efficiency in distribution. Farm leaders, small town merchants and business leaders who are going to the subject have come to a full realization of the necessity of changing our agricultural basis. Those who have given the matter most thought declare that the future agricultural program of Georgia must be based on live stock, the growing of food for the family, feed for live stock, with cotton, tobacco or some other special-crop as a cash crop. There seems to be no hope in sight for high priced cotton and even if there was the greatest factor in the hastening of this program is cheap electrical power available to the small communities and eventually to the farms.

Electricity Transforms Editor's City of Greensboro. "I believe I am in a better position than the average man to see the value of rural electricity. Here in Greensboro we have a concrete illustration. It has not been many months since we sold our municipal plant to the Georgia Railway and Power Company. We had long wanted to do this but the power company had not had the necessary money for a large expansion program. When this difficulty was overcome by certain consolidations the Georgia Railway and Power Company moved in. The effect on our community has been most illuminating. In the first place it has lent a distinct charm to Greensboro by reason of its well lighted and attractive buildings. It has lightened the burdens of hundreds of housewives through the introduction of labor-saving devices. More than one hundred electric ranges have been sold locally and for the first time in our lives we are having the delightful experience of having our toast and coffee made electrically. It has further influenced the social life of our community. Our women are learning how to prepare new and wholesome dishes. They have more time to devote to their families and the effect is far reaching. Our local stores have felt the influence and are improving the appearance of the stores and warehouses. These are merely 'by-products' of the introduction of adequate power under the direction of properly financed private companies. These things I have mentioned have been accomplished by the consolidation and uniting of power, money, men and material in great quantities under competent direction.

"I believe I speak for the majority of rural people when I say that this should go on until every rural community has available to it continuous and adequate power. In my judgment this can only be done through still further consolidation. It is a step further. It is my belief that every thoughtful Georgian in all walks of life should lend his unselfish assistance toward the completion of these mergers and toward the further effort to produce 2 1/2 inches of cotton on one acre. Miss Daniels will go to Atlanta and Washington as a representative of the Texas Farm Club girls.

Elstner Beall of Wilson, Ark., a vocational student, who won the state-wide prize in 1924 and 1925, and finished in fourth place last season. B. E. Smith of Johnston, S. C., winner of second prize in the South Carolina state cotton contest. The party will reach Washington Wednesday night, February 2nd, and will leave for their homes on February 4th. Various forms of entertainment are being planned for their entertainment in the national capital. Ira C. Marshall of Hardin county, Ohio, who grew 160 bushels of corn to the acre in 1926, and thus earned the title of uncrowned Corn King of America will join the party in Washington and will be received by President Coolidge.

CO-OPERATIVE HOG SALE SATURDAY OF NEXT WEEK

A co-operative hog sale will be held at the livestock pens of the Central of Georgia yards on Friday, February 11th. This sale will be handled by W. W. Webb of the State Bureau of Markets. This is a trial sale being held at the request of several farmers. Whether or not these sales will be held in the future will depend on the success of this sale. All those who intend to sell hogs at this sale had best list what they have with County Agent E. P. Josey.

GEORGIA PRESS CROWD WILL JOURNEY TO BOSTON

Georgia Press Association makes its trip to Boston from Savannah on May 12 aboard the City of Chattanooga and returns to Savannah on May 21. The following story appears in the January issue of The Editors' Forum:

"A letter from our own Jack D. McFadden, assistant of the president of the Central of Georgia Railway, informs us that everything has been arranged for the trip to Boston May 12th. The City of Chattanooga will be transferred from the New York line to the Boston run for this trip, which means that we will again be under the watchful eye of Capt. Hammond, who greatly endeared himself to the press gang in 1925. We will also have the pleasure of renewing our acquaintance with his splendid crew. President J. J. Peley and wife will make the trip with us, and it is expected that President and Mrs. Downs of the Illinois Central will go with us. Of course Jack and Mrs. McFadden will be among those present.

"The steamer will make schedule as follows: 'Leave Savannah 3 p. m. May 12. 'Arrive Boston 6 a. m. May 16. 'Leave Boston 10 a. m. May 17. 'Arrive Savannah 6 a. m. May 21. 'The writer had the pleasure last summer of making this trip to Boston and every minute of the time was greatly enjoyed. The steamer goes farther out in the ocean than the New York steamers, especially after passing Hatteras. From New York the scenery is very picturesque, much of the coast being along Long Island Sound.

"The trip will be open only to two representatives of each paper. These representatives must be genuinely and legally connected with the press. Full details will be given at an early date.

RUSHING MADE AGENT FARMERS STATE BANK

L. O. Rushing returned this morning from Atlanta, where he was called by the state banking department to confer with regard to the affairs of the defunct Farmers State Bank of Georgia. As a result of the conference, Mr. Rushing was designated liquidating agent for the bank with authority to assume charge of the affairs at once. He will today relieve Mr. Thompson, who has been in control for the past month, and will proceed to collect outstanding papers due the bank.

as adequate power. In my judgment this can only be done through still further consolidation. It is a step further. Won't each woman in each missionary society in the association try to see that her church and society are represented at this meeting? It is our annual meeting, having been changed from October to February, making our association year coincide with calendar year. We expect three state workers with us to bring help and inspiration. Won't you pray that much may be gained from this meeting together. You may help.

BETTER SERVICE FOR DISABLED VETERANS

PLANS ARE DEVELOPING FOR CARE OF LEGIONNAIRES IN ATLANTA HOSPITALS.

Veterans of the World War will be interested to learn that plans are being made for improved service for disabled veterans, sponsored by the American Legion.

J. G. C. Bloodworth, state director of veteran's service bureau, has made public two letters which will be of interest to American Legion members of the state.

One is a letter from Chairman W. B. Miller to Mr. Bloodworth concerning the activity of the rehabilitation committee's work. It is as follows:

"As you are aware the national rehabilitation committee and the state of Georgia rehabilitation organization have been of the opinion that there should be erected at or near Atlanta, a modern general hospital with diagnostic facilities. The director of the Veterans' Bureau has joined the legion in this feeling. Atlanta is centrally located, with respect to the health road, transportation and proximity to a possible high class outside consultant service. The proposition was advanced by the Legion in Georgia and by this committee to the national legislature at its last session, but at too late a time to justify the hope of any action at that session. I feel that the effort would be inaugurated at an early moment as possible in the forthcoming session of congress and to that end I wish you would advise all of your representatives in both the upper and lower houses of the desirability of such an institution as is roughly referred to above, so that their necessary help can be secured. This help of course must not be abstract but definite and vigorous because even with the assistance of the director of the Veterans' Bureau we might encounter some difficulties of a legislative or appropriating character."

The letter of Director Frank T. Hines of the United States Veterans' Bureau says:

"During the past year a representative of the bureau met with officials and members of the American Legion in a conference at Macon, Ga., and discussed the question of a further expansion of the present facilities at the United States Veterans' Hospital, Atlanta, Ga., for the reception of disabled veterans. It was placed before the board of directors and totally inadequate to care for the patients in the southeastern part of the country. There is a definite need for an increase in the hospital facilities in that area, and the bureau is endeavoring to secure the most suitable location for a large, modern hospital center in Atlanta on account of it being the gateway to the south and therefore being the advantage over any other location in the full state. As you are aware of all of course, in order to secure congressional authority and an adequate appropriation to cover the expense incident thereto before any action is taken by the bureau to increase the facilities at Atlanta."

At present there are more Georgia veterans being taken out of the state for hospital treatment than are being given treatment in the state because of the inability to handle them properly. This is expected to be avoided and the plan is to make Atlanta the center of greater benevolent facilities for handling the situation, not only in Georgia but in the Southeast.

NEGRO JUBILEE SINGERS COMING TO STATSBORO

The Williams Colored Singers, an aggregation of ten negro singers and performers selected from American universities and colleges, will appear at the court house auditorium on Thursday night, February 17, under the auspices of the colored high school.

The program of the colored singers will comprise negro compositions from the best of their composers, including melodies and jubilee songs, some of the "creole" love songs, and classical selections from the world's famous composers. There are quartet and double quartet combinations of the singers, and two contraltos and two soprano soloists, a basso and a tenor, among the members of the company.

The Williams Colored Singers have toured Europe and South America, and made a stand of 130 nights in London alone. It is their twentieth season touring America. Most of the singers have been selected from Southern schools and have been familiar with the well-known negro jubilee music and spirituals. Their rendition of this original negro music has been the "big hit" of the company, and it is said that their rendition of the so-called "blues" songs is unlike anything which people here have ever heard.

Charles P. Williams, leader of the Williams Singers, was reared in Mississippi and grew up in the very atmosphere of negro plantation songs, and his interpretation is first-hand. The son of a negro minister, his life has been one of negro song, and his whole life-work has been to properly interpret negro music in its original form to the present generation. His rendition of the negro spirituals, the foremost now appearing before the American public in negro song.

The local promotion work for the conference is said to be in the hands of a committee of young people headed by Joe Santo, P. O. Box 314, Macon. EVENING OF FROLIC TO BE CLUB FEATURE

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO BE HOST TO THEIR LADIES NEXT MONDAY EVENING.

Announcements have been made for the regular annual Ladies' Night to be staged by the Statesboro Chamber of Commerce on next Monday, St. Valentine's Day. All members of the Chamber of Commerce are expected to be accompanied by their wives or other lady members of their families—or sweethearts.

The dinner will be served in the dining hall of the Georgia Normal, and plates will be prepared for approximately 250. It is expected, also, that a number of other guests will be present.

Guy Wells, chairman of the entertainment committee, has made all the necessary plans for an evening of frolic. There will be many surprise stunts of which even the participants themselves will be unaware till they are called upon. The program will be varied, embracing little vaudeville comedy, however.

The annual Ladies' Night has come to be noted as an occasion on the calendar of the organization's activities, and Monday evening's festivities will rank along with the best of the past.

All members who expect to attend are asked to make known their intentions to the secretary promptly.

Another mistake too many drivers make is in using their horns instead of their brakes when they see they are going to run over somebody.

NEW PUBLICATION TO BEAR WATSON'S NAME

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 7.—The Watsonian, published by the Tom Watson Book company at Thomson, Ga., has made its appearance on news stands in Atlanta and elsewhere. It will be the first publication of the Watsonian Book company, which was organized to publish a picture of the late U. S. Senator Thomas E. Watson, whose speeches and writings are widely known. The new magazine, pocket size, is expected to meet a demand, said to exist since the senator's death, for a medium in which to make his brilliant writing available to the general public.

The first issue of the Watsonian carries among other interesting features a story of the life of Mr. Watson, by his grand-daughter, Georgia Watson Lee, which shows unusual knowledge and intimacy with the person and literary taste of the great statesman. Printed also in this issue is the preface and introduction of "The Roman Catholic Hierarchy," by Mr. Watson, in being stated that the last chapter will appear in the next issue of the magazine. Other selected writings of the late senator, as carried in the initial number, make the magazine a highly readable publication.

ALFRIEND MADE VERY STRONG ADDRESS HERE

SPoke ON NEED OF HIGHER EDUCATION BEFORE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE FRIDAY NIGHT

A strong plea for better education in Georgia—better education for the children of the rural districts—was made by Kyle T. Alfried, secretary of the Georgia Educational Association, before the Statesboro Chamber of Commerce Friday evening at the Jackson Hotel. The address came at the close of a luncheon at which Mr. Alfried was a guest. Many visitors outside of the membership were present by invitation, some from Port and Brooklet and other out-of-town points.

Mr. Alfried made the statement in the beginning that the education problem in Georgia is altogether rural. It is in the rural districts, he declared, that the need is the greatest and the terms the shortest. In the rural districts there is an alarmingly low rate of the children who never go through the grammar grades. Eighty-eight counties in the state have only six months of school in the rural districts. Among other things he cited the manner in which Georgia boys and girls are allowing the natural resources of the state to be developed by outsiders because they have not the education with which to meet the problems of development and exploitation. Georgia rural schools are sadly in need of longer terms, and he stressed the fact that Georgia is not to be left behind in the amount of money spent on education.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS TO SPEAK IN STATSBORO

Robert Davis, of the International Council of Religious Education, will make two addresses at the Methodist church in Statesboro at a Sunday school institute Friday, Feb. 25, under the auspices of the local Sunday school association, according to an announcement from the Georgia Sunday School Association. R. D. Webb, general superintendent of the state association, who will also speak at the institute, states that the visit to Statesboro is a part of a tour of five towns and cities in Georgia, the tour including Augusta, Waynesboro, Rome and Savannah.

The sessions of the institute will be at 4:00 and 8:00. All pastors, superintendents, teachers, and parents are invited to attend. The program for Friday night includes the Benediction and Saturday night includes the Benediction and Sunday morning includes the Benediction and Sunday morning includes the Benediction.

BEN HILL DAIRYMEN RECEIVE BIG INCOME

That the dairy industry in South Georgia is growing rapidly is evidenced by reports from the agricultural department of the A. B. and C. railroad which shows that a local creamery paid approximately $100,000 to dairymen in Ben Hill county and adjoining territory during the past twelve months.

The reports stated that there will be a large increase in the number of cows brought to the Ben Hill county within the next few weeks. Definite arrangements have been made, it was said, for the purchase of three high class registered Ayrshire bulls and a number of Guernsey, Holstein and Ayrshire heifer calves by the farmers of the county. Five of the young Ayrshire bulls have been allotted to the agricultural department of the A. B. and C. railroad, three of which will be placed in Ben Hill county, the railroad officials in Atlanta said.

The dairymen in Ben Hill county at present are receiving many thousands of dollars annually from the sale of sour cream to the creamery in Fitzgerald, said C. T. Owens, county agent of Ben Hill county. "With the operation of new dairy cattle and the opening of new pastures, now in prospect, the dairy business, together with the hog and poultry industry, is expected to reach large proportions."

MEN WELL KNOWN HERE NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH

Baxley, Ga., Feb. 7.—G. H. Parker, former member of Baxley and at one time a member of the general assembly from Appling county is seriously injured in Macon Hospital as the result of an automobile accident last night at Macon, Ga.

Mr. Parker, accompanied by Dr. H. C. McCracken, of Baxley, had been to Milledgeville visiting their daughters at the Women's college, while turning a sharp curve on the highway 11 miles north of Lumber City, the light curve in which the two men were riding overturned three times and landing in a ditch. Mr. Parker sustained a fractured skull, and other injuries, while his companion, Dr. McCracken, escaped with slight bruises.

Both men mentioned in the foregoing item are well known here. Parker is a brother of W. C. Parker, and uncle of Statesboro's mayor. He practiced law in Statesboro a quarter of a century ago. Dr. McCracken was for a number of years located at Reagor, in this county, where he had a large practice. Both men frequently visit Statesboro.

LAMB MEETS DEATH AS TRUCK OVERTURNS

ACCIDENT WAS SECOND HE HAD WITH TRUCK INSIDE OF ONE WEEK.

G. F. Lamb, aged 31 years, met instant death when the Ford truck he was driving overturned on Savannah avenue about 8 o'clock Monday morning, breaking his neck and his back.

Lamb, driving for the Gulf Refining Company, was going with a tank of gasoline to Brooklet on his daily round. About two hundred yards inside the eastern city limit his truck, said to have been going at a moderate rate of speed, suddenly swerved to the right, and then wobbled and turned over on its right side. The accident is said by marshmen who later examined the truck to have been due to a slight misalignment of the front axle. The same truck turned over with Lamb on Wednesday preceding and since that date had been given an overhauling by him. He had been driving the truck for several months and was said to be a fairly expert mechanic. Before going with the Gulf Company he was for a long while night engineer at the city fire station.

The point at which the fatal accident occurred is noted for its sand depth, and is frequently in bad shape. On this occasion, however, there was no apparent obstruction, the road crew having only Saturday afternoon placed the street and placed the stretch in good condition. Julian Groover, riding in a Ford car a short distance behind Lamb, witnessed the accident and said later that there was no apparent cause for the truck to have suddenly swerved to the right as it did. The suggestion is offered that the driver had momentarily released the steering wheel.

Deceased is survived by his wife and four children. Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church Tuesday afternoon by the pastor, Rev. J. E. Parker, after which interment was in East Side cemetery.

FINAL APPEARANCE OF THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

The Ten Commandments will be shown at the Aurora Theater on the 10th and 11th of March under the auspices of the Public Welfare committee of the Woman's Club. This picture was shown here a year ago, but on an improvised screen at the public auditorium; therefore it was not as clear as on a regular moving picture screen. Those who did not see it are urged to come and see it now, as the picture will be taken off the screen March 21st. Those who did see it could not spend a more profitable evening than reviewing their memory by coming to see it again.
